

For some patients, dental implants are the perfect solution for replacing missing teeth. But not every patient is a candidate for traditional implants.

That's why Dr. Michael Kirk and Dr. Nathan Proud at Grand Dental's Nichol Hills office place and restore mini implants, too. With mini implants (MDI), patients can have a stable and functional smile comparable to what patients with traditional implants can have, but the entire procedure is less invasive and can be done many times in just one appointment.

A New Smile in Just One Appointment at Grand Dental Nichols Hills

Though mini implants are most effective when used to replace lower teeth, they can be used for other areas of your smile as well. Because having them placed and restored is less invasive and can be completed in just one visit, you can look forward to enjoying a meal with friends or family later that day.

So how do mini implants work? Well, like traditional implants, they're made of biocompatible titanium. But, unlike traditional implants, the procedure to place them is much less invasive and usually requires no stitches, gum surgery or an extended healing time. The principle is the same, though-to provide support and boost functionality.

Once your mini implants are in place, all that's left for the dentists at Grand Dental Nichols Hills to do is restore your missing teeth. With that done, you can leave our office with your confident new smile firmly in place.
